The article, presented original research. It was however clear that it was written from a PhD thesis. There are several indications of chapters in the article that does not make sense in terms of article writing. The focus is very interesting and addresses a necessary topic. The article could be better structured. For example there are two introductions, there are also not a section explaining the methodology. In the section stated literature review, there was a introduction and summary, without any indication of a literature review. The presentation and discussion of data should have been done under identified themes. I think the article needs some work still.
