The topic of the article "Factors Affecting Economic Crisis in Ethiopia: A Literature Review" is interesting and the title is promising.

At the beginning of the Introduction, a crisis is defined. After that, it would be useful to specify which economic crisis of Ethiopia is examined in the paper. There have lately been several crises worldwide and the reader might not be aware of the Ethiopian crises. The examined time period should also be specified. Moreover, the Introduction should include the aim of the paper.

When describing unemployment among macroeconomic factors, a chart about the evolution of the unemployment rate for the examined period would be useful. The same applies to other rates (like inflation rate or poverty rate) that values are described for several years in the text.

Recommendation include many suggestions, a part of which, however, cannot be derived from the main text.

The paper should describe the research works that previously dealt with crisis in Ethiopia: when and what they examined and what their conclusions were. It would be important to highlight the added value of the current paper compared to the previous research works on this topic.

The paper should also include how the authors plan to continue their research. What kind of empirical analysis are they going to carry out, what question do they wish to answer with that and what methods are they going to use?

The paper is written in poor English. Proofreading is necessary.
