The study appears to be incomplete. In the introduction, the methodological design highlights data collection through interviews with specialists. However, in the methodology chapter, it was mentioned that the collection took place through an open question (not an interview) on Research Gate. What are the criteria for selecting respondents? Qualifications of respondents? How many responded? Are the results the result of the responses or the literature review? In general, the literature is localized, outdated, and incipient if conducting, for example, a bibliometric study with the search terms.
