- Ensure that relevant keywords are added to the abstract. These should be terms that capture the main concepts and themes of your work, making it easier for readers and indexing systems to identify the focus of your research.
- Provide clear and descriptive titles for all tables and figures. Each title should concisely explain the content, enabling readers to understand the context without needing to refer to the main text.
- Remove any bullet points in your document. Instead, present information in paragraph form or as clearly structured sentences, ensuring smooth flow and readability throughout the text.
- Your work meets the expected standards and demonstrates a good understanding of the subject. It is well-organized, with clear explanations and relevant content
