Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The author has highlighted the research topic regarding challenges care for older adults in nursing homes in the COVID 19 pandemic era. There are several things that need attention to improve the quality of this article.

Strengths:

1. Relevant Topic: The topic of the article addresses a critical and timely issue—the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on nursing homes.
2. Real-Life Implications: The article highlights the real-life implications of the COVID-19 pandemic on nursing home residents, particularly those with dementia. It addresses the difficulties faced by residents, their families, and caregivers during isolation, and provides valuable suggestions to improve their well-being.
3. Practical Recommendations: The article offers practical recommendations for nursing home administrators and staff to cope with the challenges posed by the pandemic. The suggestions regarding organizational changes, communication with families, and individualized care demonstrate a thoughtful approach to improving the residents' quality of life.

Areas for Improvement:

1. It seems unclear whether the article is the result of qualitative research or a review. Authors need to write more clearly according to the type of article. If it is the result of a qualitative study, you can follow the COREQ Checklist, if it is a review, you can complete it according to the PRISMA guidelines
2. Clearer Organization: The article could be more effectively structured. Separating sections with subheadings and providing a clear introduction, results, methodology, discussion and conclusion would improve readability and help readers better understand the flow of ideas.
3. You can also add limitations to this research
4. In writing the methodology, it must be done clearly and in detail, to avoid bias.
5. You also need to make corrections for English and always use the correct terms and vocabulary.
6. Ethical Considerations: Include ethical considerations for your research

Thank you and Good Luck.
