The title should be shorter and more effective. It does not explain why the patient requested a stool test, if there were symptoms of diarrhea, or if it was just for research purposes. The research problem must be clearly stated. The research question needs to be stated so that the discussion is more focused.

The information presented is just data, not information, and the discussion needs to analyze in depth why it is related or not related. It would be better if the data became information that could be taken as a conclusion that answers the problem statement.
