

Review of: "Picture collage: A pedagogical reflective practice tool for nursing students in mental health practice"

Anwer Ali<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> COMSATS University Islamabad

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

A good research that sums up an effective study. I have some suggestions that can be considered for a better understanding of the work. Firstly the research settings can be elaborated further like the quantitative aspect of it; number of students, ages, genders, category of the institutions etc. this can determine the study's quality. Secondly the students reflection is random there's no categorization or breaking them into subheadings can make the reading experience better. Even tabulation of the narration or reflection can also be a valuable addition. Thirdly the work can address limitations and de-limitations for further works. Finally good photos could have made this study amazing.