

Review of: "Overcoming Barriers: Enhancing Women's Access to Financial Services for Agribusiness in Uganda – An Empirical Review"

Yaw Sarfo¹

¹ Georg-August Universität Göttingen

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper addresses an important topic in development economics. It is straightforward, easy to follow, and offers solid policy recommendations. However, I believe the paper could be enhanced by considering studies beyond Uganda that explore barriers to women's access to formal financial services. Specifically, including research from other Sub-Saharan African countries could broaden the context and increase the study's relevance. Additionally, offering suggestions for future research would be a valuable addition. Overall, it's a well-done paper with room for further development.