The manuscript is well organized but requires corrections. Here are some of my observations.

1. The quality of the figures should be the same. They should be done in the same program.
2. The title and objective indicate that it will be a review of chemical and biological properties, however when reading it, the authors focus only on extracts. They only mention a table with compounds. I recommend that they could talk a little more about the main compounds in the extracts (isolation, characterization, and identification). They can also incorporate the technique in table 2.
3. Correct some grammatical and typographical errors, such as lack of italics or full scientific names.
4. Keywords are not specific to the work, title, and objective.
5. In the introduction there is no mention of the objective of this work, I consider that a change should be made in the structure of the introduction.
6. The section on Phytoconstituents could be improved and expanded by incorporating elucidation and characterization studies.
