Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

- The overall structure is clear, progressing from the general consequences of smoking to specific devices like cigars and electronic cigarettes.
- It would be beneficial to include specific statistics or data on the prevalence and impact of smoking on oral health to strengthen your argument. This can add weight to your statements.
- Consider making the language more engaging and concise. For instance, instead of "The same consequences can be observed with dental implants," you could elaborate on specific effects on dental implants.
- While you mention the negative effects, it might be useful to include some positive reinforcement or encouragement for smokers to quit or reduce their habit. Providing resources or tips for quitting could enhance the practical impact of your information.
- Ensure that you cite specific studies or sources for the information provided, especially when mentioning statistics or facts. This adds credibility to your claims.
- While you reference the Brazilian National Cancer Institute, it would be helpful to acknowledge that smoking and its consequences are a global issue. This provides a broader context for readers from different regions.
- Considering the fast-paced changes in technology and health knowledge, you might want to check if there are any updates on the stance of health agencies regarding electronic cigarettes and hookahs.
- A succinct conclusion summarizing the key points and emphasizing the importance of adopting healthy habits could enhance the impact of your message.
