

Review of: "Sustainable Prosperity and Circular Economy in the Care of Mother Earth — The Blue Kiss"

Prof. Naglaa Fathy El Dessouky¹

¹ University of Bahrain

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper topic is of great importance as it emphasizes the valuable contribution of women to sustainable prosperity and the circular economy. The proposed ecological feminism viewpoint highlights the need to reconsider our existing economic systems. It emphasizes the importance of embracing innovative and creative ideas through the concept of the circular economy to promote sustainable ecological systems. Additionally, it advocates for an inclusive approach that connects women with nature. The paper highlighted the significance of integrating institutional and legal frameworks, along with fostering effective governance between the government and society, with a specific emphasis on women. This is essential for the successful implementation of sustainable development initiatives.

The paper provokes deep reflection in the reader as it presents a well-organized and cohesive structure that raises various thought-provoking questions. Moreover, the ideas are effectively conveyed in a thoughtful manner, with well-researched references on the topic discussed. Likewise, the paper effectively provided thorough analysis, discussion, and recommendations that offer valuable guidance for decision-makers and the formulation of public policy on the topic under investigation.

Including a conceptual framework for the various variables discussed in the paper is advised, as it will offer a comprehensive understanding and a useful structure for the ideas presented.