Trismus-pseudocamptodactyly syndrome

INSERM

Source

A rare, genetic, distal arthrogryposis characterized by pseudocamptodactyly, mild foot deformities, moderately short stature, and short muscles and tendons resulting in a limited range of motion of the hands, legs, and mouth, the later presenting with trismus.