I appreciate the author trying to investigate an interesting topic on myths on allergies in India. While the topic has a great potential, the scientific methodological rigor and implications can be improved. For example, the author may add some details in methods section and specify if she used an established scale or created one of her own. If she created one, did she validate it? While the paper still has some significance, increasing some details could really increase the value of this work in my opinion. I wish the author all the best.
