This paper may be described as a project for a digital platform. Although an elaborated technical document this document does not fulfill the requirements for a scientific contribution. However, with further work, it may be turned into a valuable contribution based on action research or a case study. For this, additional work is necessary: present a research gap, a thorough and updated literature review, a research protocol and a more detailed account of the process of conceiving the platform. In the end, theoretical and practical implications obtained with the research.
