First of all, I would like to thank the author for his manuscript.Secondly, the author introduces the system and key techniques needed to quantify mental health.The manuscript is rich in content but lacks elaboration, such as the introduction and explanation of the pictures;There are no clinical trials to prove the validity and feasibility of the mental health quantification technique.The manuscript lacks a description of the limitations of this study;Key scientific questions are unclear, and the author needs to revise the structure and organization of the paper. Finally, I look forward to the author's final manuscript.
