Review of: "A Bibliometric Review of CSR in China Based on CNKI Database: 2006-2022"

Majid Khan[1]

1 Xiamen University

Thank you for providing your review of the manuscript titled "A Bibliometric Review of CSR in China Based on CNKI Database: 2006-2022". I appreciate your effort in tackling the essential issue of bibliometric analysis of CSR research in the Chinese context from 2006 to 2022. However, before finalizing the publication of this manuscript, I believe there are some critical points that need to be addressed.

One of the key areas that requires improvement is the problematization of the research's significance and potential impacts/contributions. While the manuscript touches upon the bibliometric analysis of CSR literature, it lacks a clear rationale for why this type of research is necessary and what practical implications it may have. The introduction section currently presents a descriptive overview of CSR literature, but it would be beneficial to focus on why a bibliometric review of CSR research in China is important. By linking the purpose of the study to its potential implications, the manuscript's overall readability will be enhanced, and readers will better understand the significance of the research.

I believe that by bridging the gap between the introduction and the subsequent sections of your paper, you can effectively improve the clarity and impact of your manuscript. It's essential to demonstrate the broader implications of your findings and how they contribute to the existing body of knowledge on CSR in China. I hope you find value in my feedback, and I look forward to seeing the revisions that address these concerns in your research.