

Review of: "A Policy Dialogue for Nutrition of Women and Adolescent Girls: Sustainable Development Goals Matters Arising"

Crishelen Kurezyn Díaz¹

¹ Universidad Popular Autónoma del Estado de Puebla

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is interesting and addresses a topic relevant to our society. The information corresponding to the SDGs and how it relates to the study is significant. You have referred to studies that provide a basis for understanding how the problem raised is addressed. In addition, the ten key actions to improve nutrition are part of an interesting proposal that could be applied later in another study. However, there are some elements to which special attention should be paid:

-In the Abstract, it is essential to briefly and punctually mention the methodology, results, and conclusions so that the reader has a general idea of what will be explored in the work.

-In the Introduction and throughout the document, it is necessary to add citations since everything stated must have theoretical support.

-Add the source of the studies referenced in the article.

-In the methodology, broadly explain the type of study, scope, and procedure.

-Review grammar, especially everything related to the use of punctuation marks.

The article should be published once these elements have been addressed since its contribution is significant.