This is a simple study. In terms of the literature review, while relevant studies were cited and their beta-values reported, it must be noted that the body of literature reviewed is dated (none were published in the last 5 years). In terms of methods, no justification was provided for the sample size or why Engineering students were specifically sampled. The range and mean score for the students' grades were not reported. While gender was controlled, the researcher did not make good use of this to perform a more detailed analysis by gender.
