

Review of: "Picture collage: A pedagogical reflective practice tool for nursing students in mental health practice"

Phil Maude¹

¹ La Trobe University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Thank you for this thoughtful paper. When reading the section you developed on stigma I was wanting to read more about how this culturally translates in an Islamic nation. You went on to delivery very good insights into how mental ill health is viewed within Islam and also how western models of individualised care is not an appropriate fit for a modern Islamic society. It made me contemplate what is a good model of therapy within UAE The structure of the paper is excellent. It builds from section to section. Just check some of the brackets as you have a square bracket occasionally used around an intext citation (...]. Well done on presenting this paper. It is going to be very useful for higher degree students who are considering models of care delivery and therapy within the Gulf states.