

Review of: "Online learning during the COVID-19 pandemic, lessons learned and what's next?"

Garyfallia Katsavounidou¹

¹ Aristotle University of Thessaloniki

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article aims at providing an overall review of the experience of online learning during the recent pandemic. In my opinion it could be better structured and more focused. In specific, I was left wondering about the following:

- What is the structure of the paper (it is not stated in the introduction)
- What is the methodology used
- What is the specific context (in terms of geography, discipline, level of education)
- On which data do the writers draw their conclusions

I hope the writers will proceed into a major rewriting of the paper so as to answer the above.