1 The topic is interesting and will attract many citations. In reading the manuscript, I found that it was not easy to read the findings because I was a bit lost in figuring out the focus of the study. I suggest that the author needs to state the problem identification, research questions, research aims, or purposes at the end of the background section.

2 The findings are then to be organized to answer the research questions or problems.

3 The discussion needs to emphasize the how and to what extent the Chapter 1, written by the Masters and PhD students, relates to the content and quality of the other chapters.

4 The Reference list needs to be carefully checked.
For example, Ngwenya (2015) is not completely written.
