

Review of: "Recent Trends in Dry Eye Disease Treatment in Asia"

Olga Graciela Cantú-Rodríguez

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I think this work is a very good synopsis of the effective treatment known for dry eye disease (DED), as well as new treatments that may have a revolutionary effect in this pathology in the future. In my opinion, this work makes a very complete and understandable description of the mechanism of action of this possible treatments, making the reader see and understand why they would work from a physiologic point of view. I believe it would be interesting to see a study where comparisons between the second line treatments are made, in order to actually know their range of effectiveness.