This is a very interesting paper that has a sharp dynamic between capital intensive land owners and lower income groups. The dimensions of sustainable development and where they conflict could have been discussed a little more. The paper is a little heavy going with all the frameworks and theoretical positions mentioned so the author can certainly not be faulted for that.

On a more editorial note, please do not use first person "I". Edit throughout the paper. "The results show.." or "this paper uses.." 'Results or analyses show' rather than "I claim". It just makes for better academic writing to improve the paper.
