Review of: "Publish or perish: time for a rethink?"

Darko Kero¹

¹ University of Split

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is a well-written short article on a very important topic, namely the proliferation of published research due to the rise of open access journals. The article outlines some well known problems regarding the low quality and poor visibility of research published in OA journals and outlines possible solutions to this problem. However, the article doesn't bring anything new and looks like a post for a web portal that can easily be created by AI. In summary, the book is not bad as an appetizer, but considering the relevance and complexity of the topic, I expected more from the authors.