The paper proposes an interesting question in the Danish economy: a relationship between regional productivity and economic growth. This paper is well-developed and needs only a few alterations.

Suggestions:

- 1) you could mention in the abstract that the paper is about the Danish economy (also specify the econometric model)
- 2) You could make clear the methodology you apply in the introduction. Why did you use it? Which advantages does it bring?
- 3) A paragraph describing the results in the introduction is desirable
- 4) A table describing the variables, definition, and sources would help to read and understand the econometric construction of the paper
- 5) In the results section, the authors could discuss the results with other similar studies, showing differences, and similar findings
