

Peer Review

Review of: "A VAR Framework of Exchange Rates, Interest Rates, and Inflation Through COVID-19 in Turkey: Empirical Evidence From Linear Cointegration and Causality Analysis"

Nuno Teixeira¹

1. Instituto Politécnico de Setúbal, Portugal

The subject studied is relevant and current.

Regarding the literature review, it presents an interesting set of studies about the subject, but it could include results from more recent research studies to highlight the similarities and differences of the conclusions of this research.

About the research methodology, it is described in detail. However, it is suggested to cite reference studies that contribute to better justifying the variables and statistical methods used.

Regarding the results, it is considered that they are important for future decisions on monetary policies.

Declarations

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.