The article deals with an important subject matter and serves to raise awareness of the importance of vaccinations and role of the immunisation week. I have the following comments on the article:

Line 1 of the abstract and especially the use of the word high risk group is contrary to the opening line of the main introduction

Line 4 of the abstract needs to be reconsidered as healthcare workers are not only exposed to infections because of dealing with patients

I think paragraph 2 need to include a an overarching framework for prevention and control of infections amongst healthcare workers with a link to vaccinations as part of the process

I find that although the article alerts to the need for vaccination there is no tangible action steps that are proposed.
