

Review of: "Effects of Teachers' Professional Development on Students' Academic Achievement"

Rofiq Noorman Haryadi

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

In conclusion, the article makes a valuable contribution to the field of education by assessing the impact of teacher professional development programs on students' academic achievement in the context of African and Caribbean countries. The findings suggest a positive effect, but further research could explore the specific elements of these programs that contribute to improved outcomes and consider potential limitations and external factors that might influence results.