A very enjoyable work to read and very important for the communities mentioned and for everyone.

Nevertheless, there is some observation to be made.

I will put in the form of a bulleted list for simplicity, not for order or discourtesy:

- For example, I notice that there is no comparison with other studies in the discussion area. I suggest that this should be explored further.
- It is not divided like a normal article. I suggest revising this, although overall the structure is clear.
- The source should always be cited in each caption of each image.
- The language comes across as unscientific in some places in particular (e.g., we have, ...). As also cautioned by other reviewers.
- I suggest expanding with comparisons if it is to be understood as a scientific article. And also the part of results and discussions. In its present form it can be understood as a technical manual, albeit very useful and well done.
