Thank you for the opportunity to review this paper, and congratulations to all the authors and research team that has generated this opinion piece. I found it very informative and engaging, and I hope more similar analyses will be available to the specialised and general public.

In terms of reviewing, I sensed a somewhat disconnectedness from the title as I was reading the material, but only because such a generous title can sometimes bring the mind of a future reader to a vast array of topics that are impossible to cover in one manuscript.

I found the chapter related to academic challenges especially poignant, and my only contribution to this review is to suggest a more extensive analysis of that topic in a separate piece.

Again, my congratulations to the team for a much-needed and valuable input.
