Your abstract is well-structured, and you have clearly stated the research topic, question, methods, results, and conclusions of your paper. Your introduction is coherent, logical, informative, and relevant to the field of education. However, your literature review could be improved by synthesizing and evaluating the literature more critically and systematically. You have summarized some of the studies and findings, but you have not clearly explained how they relate to your research question and objectives. You have also not clearly identified the gap or contradiction in the literature that your study aims to address.

You could also improve your literature review by using more recent and relevant sources. Additionally, you could improve your paper by adding some limitations and suggestions for future research.

The discussion section of the paper is too brief and does not provide enough interpretation and evaluation of the results. The discussion should be more balanced and comprehensive, and should answer the following questions: What are the main findings, and how do they relate to the research questions and objectives? How do the findings compare and contrast with the existing literature and theories? What are the limitations and implications of the findings for the field and practice? What are the directions and suggestions for future research?
