The information about the subject of the research and why it is important is quite obvious. However, there are still some issues to consider:

In the summary section, details of the research method and design should be given. Before the method section, the hypothesis/research question should be clearly stated.

In the method section, the method and design of the research should be clearly stated. Details of the sample should be included. Details of how the data were collected and analyzed should be included. The method section should be revised.

The cronbach alpha levels of the scales used in the research should be given.

How correlation analysis conducted between categorical variables should be clarified.

The interpretations of the findings should be updated. It should be commented on why the relationship between the variables is weak.

Table 1 should explain why 1 hour is set as the cut-off point in gaming time.

pay attention to the language of the article in Table 2.
