The article is well-written and deals with an interesting issue. Find below my suggestions to further improve it.

Most of the abstract is a general description of the topic. There should be more items related to the method and results of the research.

There are too many keywords. It should be limited to 5 or 6.

The first section is usually titled as "Introduction." Figures from this section could be shifted to section 2.

There are too many figures which may not be suitable for publication in a good journal.

TMSC case was only presented as a small part of this study. I recommend taking it out of the introduction.

Instead of using the term "Sustainability," the authors may refer to "Economic Sustainability," as this is what seems to be the focus of the article.

The authors may add some descriptive and statistical analysis to validate their points.
