While the article "Developing Engineering Education Universities in India" covers an interesting topic, it requires significant revisions to meet research article standards. The abstract, introduction, discussion, and conclusions lack proper structure and focus. Numerous statements throughout are missing citations. The authors should clearly state one objective. Sections 2.3 to 3.3 provide disconnected bullet points without sufficient explanatory context. Overall, the study does not exhibit characteristics of formal research and would benefit from refocusing its aims and restructuring the presentation to adhere to conventions for research articles.
