The article provides a comprehensive overview of the importance of vaccinations among healthcare workers (HCWs) and their role in protecting against vaccine-preventable diseases. The table is very well done, and I appreciated the recommendations of immunization of health workers in three broad categories of diseases.

My suggestions are:

- "Susceptible and infected HCWs can also contribute to nosocomial transmission of such diseases to vulnerable patients and co-workers" I would also add transmission in the context of family and "social" contacts.

It would be valuable to include a succinct paragraph elucidating the determinants influencing the acceptance of vaccinations among healthcare workers (HCWs), highlighting existing disparities and primary barriers. Additionally, there is potential merit in conducting an in-depth exploration of specific challenges and best practices aimed at enhancing vaccine acceptance among HCWs.

Thank you for the concise and highly valuable article, which serves as an exemplary resource emphasizing the significance of vaccinations among healthcare workers (HCWs). This document holds relevance for professionals seeking insightful guidance in this domain.
