

Review of: "Ethical and political consumption: an integrated typology of practices"

Yi-ping Zhong¹

¹ Hunan Normal University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Review comments This research explores the relationship between ethical and political consumption from a practical perspective. The perspective of this research is relatively unique and novel, which can provide many research ideas. This study examines ethical and political consumption in the form of a review. However, there are still some details that need to be dealt with in this study. First, the content of this study is a bit messy and mixed, please rearrange it so that we can read better. Second, whether the deficiencies identified in this study can be remedied in this study. Third, the references for this study are a bit old, please add references from the last two years.