The second version of Hime Oliveira's article still seems suitable for publication and has a content quality rating of 5 stars. The added information clarifies doubts or suggestions from other reviewers, and is good because the content is now more refined, didactic, and explanatory in terms of replacing the term "Artificial Intelligence" with "Artificial Inference" (the initials remain the same - AI) and "Deep Learning" with "Global Learning". Additionally, there is more clarification about the economic investment needed to have a greater financial and social impact for the community where this technology with proposed innovations is applied.
