The abstract section still needs to be specified again, starting with the background, research objectives, methods used, research results, and research recommendations.

In the background, it is necessary to increase the year of the site source to the latest. Use relevant and current sources. Then, after carrying out the citation, you need to write down the state of the art and write down the urgency of the research.

Methodology needs to be added, specifically starting from the design used, research location, data collection techniques, respondents (population and sampling techniques), data analysis, research procedures.

The results are adjusted to the research questions, so they are visible per section.

The discussion is incomplete and needs improvement to answer each research question using relevant theory. Then, after discussing it using theory, it is then synthesized.

The conclusion provides a general picture regarding the conclusions of writing the article.
