Since it is a review article, it shouldn't have sections titled matherial, resuslts, discussion, so the structure of the work is not appropriate. Also, the title does not correspond to the treated topic, since the antioxidant activity of four selected plants is given and the title is about antimicrobial Ayurveda crops... Additionally, no detailed review of the literature was given, but only one reference related to antioxidant activity. English should be improved in the entire manuscript, and the manuscript should be written in a more scientific manner. In general, authors should structure the paper better and give more data for reviewing the literature.
