The manuscript provides valuable information on interpreting the research data. Due to the importance of the issue, this work can make a significant contribution to different fields of research. Also, the informative knowledge on how to distinguish data interpretation from other main parts of the articles, such as research findings, data analysis, and discussions, seems particularly noteworthy for researchers. I think publishing this manuscript can have an important effect on enhancing researchers' ideas in writing the methods clearly, which is very valuable for both researchers and readers. The paper has the potential to be accepted as it is.
