First of all, let us congratulate the author for taking up one the important topics that need immediate attention of the researchers and policy makers. There is no doubt that Microinsurance has got a huge potential in terms of market penetration and the potential impact it can create in the Indian society.

We have a few observations and suggestions with respect to the content of the article /papers mentioned below. We hope the author would consider the below mentioned points, update the paper and resubmit it.

1. The paper seems to be drafted in little hurry. As the title and scope of paper is Microinsurance, the author mentioned about the study of Microfinance in abstract and objectives.
2. The author has put sincere efforts in collecting various papers published on microinsurance, however, the content of those papers seems to be directly copied. This is against the good research practice. Hence, it is advised to the author to take care of this issue.
3. There are various way in which literature review can be done and presented in a paper. The author is advised to refer to the quality research papers and may adopt any of the good method for literature review.
4. One of the objectives of bibliographic literature review is to map the existing research contributions into major areas for future research. This is missing from the paper.
5. The ultimate goal of any literature review is to find the Research Gap so that budding researchers can take up those topics which have more potential to fill the research gap and contribute to the existing knowledge in the area. Unfortunately, there is no concrete research gap identified or presented in the paper despite a good number of papers were referred. So, it is advised to the author to work on this aspect too.
