The paper's call for further research to explore the specific mechanisms and contextual factors influencing the effectiveness of financial literacy interventions is essential. However, it might benefit from a more explicit statement of the research gap and its significance. So, It would be helpful to elaborate on why addressing this gap is essential and how it will contribute to the existing body of knowledge, as this can provide a stronger rationale for the study.

Overall, the study is well-structured and informative, but it could be strengthened by emphasising the unique contribution and significance of the study more explicitly and by refining the research objectives for greater clarity.
