I have two suggestions for improving this article that will assist readers based outside of India to understand the current training and suggested public health internship better. I have listed below some of the questions that came to mind when I read the article.

1. Add a paragraph that provides more information regarding the training of health care professionals, how long are the courses? Who goes to public health camps? Students that elect to go or is it a compulsory rotation? When to the public health camps take place? In the junior or senior years? How long is a camp? Is it a day excursion or a weekend or longer?
2. Add a paragraph on what the ideal public health internship should like. How long should it be? An entire year, six months, a month? Who should supervise the students? Is it best to offer it to final year students or should it be post graduate?
