The idea of the article is good, however the text should be improved. As other reviewers pointed out, the abstract should be reduced and converted to a readable text. The introduction could be divided into two sections: 1) background, briefly stated of the art, aim or research questions, and contribution to the literature; 2) state of the art, this should be further expand. The methodology should be better explained and tables referenced (in the first table there is not explanation of the meaning of A or B for example). More information about the sample should be provided, how the questionnaire was conducted, when, where, what questions were address and if the statements had an explanation as some of them could be difficult to be understand by the respondents.
