Dear Gabri;

1.The introduction section is poorly written and the sources used are very few and old. It is necessary for the author to read and review the latest articles in this field.

2. Also, the novelty of the work should be clearly stated in the introduction.

3, in the conclusion, it is necessary to review and compare the article and its results with the latest articles in this field in order to better show the innovation of the work.

4. The conclusion section is weak and only presents generalities.

5. The discussion about the analysis of the findings was not found in the numerical results section.
