

Review of: "Designing for Social Sustainability: How Urban Environments Influence Crime"

Oluwaseun Okimiji

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Comments

This study examine how urban environments influence crime with respect to designing for social sustainability. Hence, the overall presentation is fair enough but the paper needs major revision before it can be accepted for publication.

For "Abstract section"; Authors are suggested to remove "e.g." from the manuscript and from sentence like "Variables of climate (e.g., short-to-long term climate-related stressors) and crime types also show non-linear association".

For "Introduction section"; the Authors are suggested to revise this section due to scanty references. Hence, this section requires more and recent literature citations.

The Authors are suggested to use numbering for the headings and sub-headings for proper arrangement/clarification.

Authors are suggested to check the manuscript for grammatical errors.

For "Validation and Discussion section"; more recent literatures should be cited to validate the study findings.

For "Reference section"; Authors are suggested to follow the paper referencing guideline.