

Review of: "Provision of creative arts interventions in UK drug and alcohol services: A cross-sectional study"

Eric Kreuter

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article and study provide timely and excellent evidence of the utility and importance of creative arts interventions adjunct to traditional psychotherapeutic approaches in the treatment of addiction to chemical substances. The surveys indicate a strong affinity of such program offerings.