The work with the title "Establishing a Multidisciplinary Human Resources Development Institute Under Public-Private Partnerships" presents an interesting topic, considering the current context in which the concept of Public-Private Partnerships is widely used, because PPPs are considered an extremely important tool in development.

I would like to note some comments and suggestions:

1. A single citation style should be used within the paper to give an academic allure. The inconsistency of the citation style can lead to the thought of a manuscript in preparation.
2. The research methodology requires at least a few introductory words, presenting the methods and protocols to be used by the author in his analysis.
3. The Discussion section has a too general character, it should be discussed in relation to the proposed PPP model.
4. The list of references needs revision. At the moment, it has a messy look. Examples: certain works have only the titles, without any identifying element; some links do not work; 2029 appears as the year of publication for a work; certain works are duplicated, etc.

Thank you for the opportunity to review, and I wish the author much success in future research!
