

Review of: "Teaching the seasons of the year to kindergarten students using desktop virtual reality. A comparative study"

Polyxeni Kaimara¹

¹ Ionian University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Dear Authors,

I have carefully read your manuscript about teaching concepts related to the natural environment in early childhood education using desktop VR. Virtual reality is increasingly used in education, even in kindergartens. Given that virtual reality excites children, your research has shown that well-designed applications can also facilitate learning.