The article is interesting and thought-provoking, the desk research could also capture completely up-to-date sources that deal with a similar type of research, and that there are several dozen of them available, however, it would not advance the research picture enough to mark the theoretical part as undervalued. On the other hand, the award deserves a conceptual model of the own investigation, which brings new and interesting data, valid and, in my opinion, sufficiently described and used for analyzes and recommendations. The article has added value and is a suitable contribution to the international discourse in this field. It does not matter that it does not include a more complete list of methods in the methodological portfolio, the important thing is that it initiates a discussion on the given topic.
